Dear Sir/Madam

Re: registration of DECCOX

The Commercial Poultry Veterinarians (CPV) is a special interest group of the Australian Veterinary Association, who have particular expertise and knowledge about commercial poultry (broilers and layers).

The CPV have been consulted about the proposed registration of DECCOX (Decoquate) for the prevention and control of Coccidiosis in broiler chickens.

The poultry veterinarians support registration of this new product. The basis of this support is that this will add an additional product to the rotation programs that they use, and hence reduce mortalities and improve performance.

Kind regards,
Melanie Latter
