Did you know: You can safely dispose of veterinary medicines?

Storing expired or unwanted medicines, including those for your animals, around your home and on your farm can be dangerous. Disposing of medicines properly also helps protect the environment.

Agsafe's ChemClear® program and the RUM Project provide safe and sustainable pathways for disposing of unwanted or expired veterinary medicines responsibly.

Follow these four simple steps:

1. Read the label on your veterinary medicines and check the expiry date. Consider whether you still need all the medicines for your animals.

2. Place all expired and unwanted veterinary medicines in a bag or container for safe transport and disposal.

3. Is the product in an original container that is 1 litre or greater? If so, it may be eligible for Agsafe's ChemClear® program – which is free for products carrying the drumMUSTER logo. Go online to register the product for collection at chemclear.org.au

4. Is the product eligible for the RUM Project? If so, return the expired or unwanted veterinary medicines to your local pharmacy. Your pharmacist will put your veterinary medicines in a secure bin for safe disposal.

For more information, visit chemclear.org.au, returnmed.com.au or animalmedicinesaustralia.org or talk to your local pharmacist.
